

SONS OF OLD NASSAU CHEERED DR. WILSON

Princeton's President Guest of Honor at Alumni Dinner.

The thirty-second annual dinner of the Princeton Alumni Association of the District of Columbia and the Southern States was held at the New Willard last night. The event was one of the most brilliant of the kind ever held here and sons of Princeton achieved a great success in the entertainment given the president of the institution, Dr. Woodrow Wilson.

More than sixty graduates of Princeton gathered about the banquet board to do honor to President Wilson and listen to the excellent address delivered by him concerning the progress of the old college, in which every man present had an intense interest. Dr. Wilson never was in better spirit for talking than last night, and his address was a literary treat.

Gen. James M. Johnston was the presiding officer of the evening. Seated at his right was President Wilson, who was given repeated ovations by the enthusiastic sons of "Old Nassau." While President Wilson was the principal speaker, toasts were responded to by the Hon. J. K. Richards, representing Harvard; Frazier D. Head, representing Yale; Prof. G. L. Raymond, of Princeton, and many others. Among those present who were enthusiastically received were Phil King and Gilbert Kelly, well known heroes of the gridiron.

Ovation to Prof. Wilson.

Henry E. Davis served in the capacity of toastmaster and in a facetious manner introduced the speakers of the evening. When President Wilson arose to speak the guests gave him a pleasing reception and the songs of the old college rang through the halls of the hotel. For more than forty minutes Dr. Wilson recounted the successes of the institution and told the alumni of the recent advancement in the work of the famous college. The other speakers devoted their remarks to singing the praises of their beloved alma mater, and victories on the athletic field were recounted with wonderful enthusiasm.

The banquet table was elliptical in form and decorated with a profusion of cut flowers, and everywhere were seen the blazoned colors of the college—black and orange. The individual souvenirs of the occasion attracted much attention and a song, written by one of the sons of Nassau and composed with apologies to "Mr. Dooley," served as the vocal feature of the evening. The song concerned President Wilson and every time his name was spoken, the song was repeated with more enthusiastic pleasure.

Before the guests sat down to the festal board, the annual election of officers was held, with the following results: President Johnston and Secretary McLean were re-elected. The vice presidents are Judge A. B. Hagner, H. B. Munn, A. P. Morse, Dr. Wallace Neff, F. D. McKenny, and Henry E. Davis. The executive committee is composed of the following graduates: A. B. Kelly, Dr. Balloch, J. L. Norris, Jr., Henry V. Tulloch, and W. J. Pilling.

WATCHED GIRL GROW; THEN ELOPED WITH HER

Woolen Mills Manager Weds Fifteen-Year-Old Sister of First Wife.

BALTIMORE, March 22.—When Andrew J. Heidler, manager of the Maryland Woolen Mills, courted Mary Shipley, a five-year-old sister used to come in the parlor and crawl upon the lover's lap. When Mr. Heidler led his bride to the altar the child, Katie, was the flower girl. The young wife died within a year.

This child, now fifteen years old, and her brother-in-law, thirty-five years old, have eloped, and so enraged the father and mother of the girl that they have warned the two never to come to the house.

Mr. Heidler has had the opportunity of witnessing the development of his bride from a little child into a young woman. If fifteen be a mark of womanhood. Ever since his first wife died he has lived at the Shipley home.

GRIST FROM POLICE COURTS.

Dr. William King, who has been stopping at the Central Union Mission for some time and practicing medicine, was charged with being an unlicensed physician and dropped a jury trial.

William Cropp is said to have gotten drunk yesterday and went to a barber shop at Third and G Streets northwest to sell a razor. While in the shop he staggered and fell on a marble top table, breaking it in two. A policeman arrested him for destroying private property. When he was searched the razor was found in his pocket. He was sent down for four months in default of a fine of $50.

James McKernan, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home of Dayton, Ohio, said he could not deny that he was feeling a trifle hilarious and became disorderly. He went down for thirty days.

Charles Weber, who came to this city to take up patent medicine advertisements in Georgetown, paid a fine of $5 for not getting his license.

George Snider, vagrancy, $40 fine or 180 days in jail.

Because he solicited passengers for his cab, William Blackburn, a negro, was fined $5 for violating the hack regulations.

Henry Smith, larceny from Elsie Banks, sixty days in jail.

Lloyd Thomas, larceny from Frederick Marshall, sixty days in jail.

William Brown, larceny from Charles Ross, sixty days in jail.

POSTOFFICE BROKEN INTO.

A telegram to the Postoffice Department this morning says that the safe in the postoffice at Iron Bridge, Pa., was blown open and all the stamps stolen.

MAJOR GLENN'S COURSE SEVERELY CENSURED

General Davis Says Officer Failed to Show Proper Regard for Human Life.

The records in the court-martial of Major Edwin F. Glenn, Fifth United States Infantry, tried at Manila and acquitted of the charge of unlawfully killing prisoners of war, reached the War Department yesterday morning. They disclosed the fact that the reviewing authority, Maj. Gen. George Davis, in passing upon the case, condemns Major Glenn's acts in a vigorous manner and, in fact, rebukes the court for its exonerating of the accused. In his review General Davis says:

"In the case of Major Glenn it appears that as a result of his direction seven natives held as prisoners at Calbayog were selected and sent on an expedition, and while thereon they were killed by members of the detachment of civilian and native scouts with which they were sent; that the accused had instructed the officers in command that unless the prisoners selected guided him to the insurgent camp of one Kison he was not to bring them back, and that the prisoners did fall to guide the expedition to such a camp, and were killed, four of them being struck with rifles and stabbed with bayonets and the others shot."

"There is conflicting testimony as to whether the instructions of the accused—that the prisoners were not to be brought back unless they guided the expedition to the insurgent camp—had come to the knowledge of civilian scouts in the expedition under whose immediate charge the prisoners were killed and as to whether the killing was done on account of an attempt to escape."

"The finding can be only justified on the theory that the conflicting testimony left at least a reasonable doubt in the mind of the court as to why the prisoners were killed."

"Nevertheless, there remains the fact that the drastic order of the accused directed, in the event of their failure to guide the expedition to the camp, four prisoners to be killed as to whom he had not in fact any definite knowledge showing that they knew there was such a camp as they were to find or where it was located."

"Recognizing that in pursuance of the law of war, guides for the army may be legally impressed for service, that treacherous guides may be killed, and that prisoners may be killed if necessary to prevent their escape, and giving the accused the benefit of any reasonable doubt that may arise from the testimony in the record, his order under the circumstances shows a reckless disregard for human life, which the division commander's sense of right and justice, and his conception of law and duty, require him to condemn and reprobate and which prevents him from giving an unqualified approval of the findings and acquittal of the court."

An authorized statement by General Chaffee regarding the meaning of his order upon which Major Glenn based his defense came in the same mail as the above record. The order was worded as follows:

"The division commander directs that no matter what measures may have to be adopted, information as to the whereabouts of the force must be obtained." General Chaffee comments upon its application as follows:

"In the first place, it had nothing to do with Major Glenn or any of his actions, and I don't suppose he knew such an order was in existence until he was put on trial. The order was issued in November, 1901, and sent to the commander of the brigade in the province of Batangas. Major Glenn was at that time many miles away in Samar."

"A band of renegades and marauders, said to number anywhere from 100 to 1,000, was raiding through Batangas, burning and pillaging and trying to cut up our wagon trains."

"The officers I looked upon to stop their marauding, discounted the idea that there was such a body of the enemy, and I didn't think they were doing all they could to learn the truth, so finally I issued this order. I wanted them to understand that they had to find these renegades, and do it pretty quickly, and that I didn't want any more trying about it; I wanted it done. The officers who received and obeyed it didn't use it as an excuse for any water cure applications. It didn't apply to anybody but them, and they knew what it meant."

ALMERIA GRAPES TO BE SHIPPED DIRECT

Consul Carleton Writes of Beneficial Change Decided Upon.

"The disastrous experience of the last few years in the exportation of Almeria grapes to the United States will, it is believed, bring about a decided change this season, which will be beneficial to exporters, receivers, and consumers," says A. E. Carleton, United States consular agent at Almeria, in a communication received by the State Department. Continuing, he writes as follows:

"It has been the custom to ship about half the grapes destined for the United States to Liverpool and there transfer them to the North Atlantic liners. This method has always caused a great deal of trouble and in many cases serious loss to the growers. In the rush of loading at Liverpool, the marks would get mixed, so that barrels bearing the same marks would be landed at different ports in New York, or the manifests of one steamer would contain barrels not on board, or barrels intended for sale in England would be shipped by mistake to New York."

"To remedy this state of affairs, the receivers in America and the agents of the various steamship lines in Almeria, backed by the larger exporters, will use every effort to ship the grapes in direct boats, not only to New York, but to Boston, if the demand at the latter point is great enough."

SYKES, ALIAS EDMUNDS, CAPTURED IN THE NORTH

A dispatch from Danvers, N. Y., was received by Captain Boardman yesterday to the effect that Payton T. Sykes, alias S. K. Edmunds, who is wanted in this city on the charge of forgery, had been captured on a description from the local department. He will be brought back here by Detectives Cornwell and O'Brien, who were detailed to investigate the alleged depredations of the prisoner.

Prior to his flight from Washington, Sykes conducted the "Mutual Securities Bureau," a pool investment concern, at 1421 G Street northwest. In payment for some work, he recently received a check from the "New York World" for $1, and is said to have raised the sum to $100 before cashing it. The police believe a number of other charges will be preferred against him on his arrival in this city.

FROM FARM TO PARIS ART SCHOOL IN A YEAR

Painter Attracts Attention of Wealthy Chicagoan.

CHICAGO, March 22.—From the farm to the best art schools of London and Paris is the story of Leo L. Gruenhagen, the successful young student who won the prize in the last Concorde of the Academy of Fine Arts.

Gruenhagen's last painting, which won the prize, competed for by many more experienced artists than himself, attracted much attention. It gained the special attention of a wealthy Chicago merchant. Admiring the boy's courage and enterprise as much as his talent, the rich merchant negotiated for the purchase of the picture. He offered so large a sum for it that the modest student refused at first to accept the offer.

"But this money will enable you to study with the best of the artists abroad," urged the persistent purchaser, whereupon the ambitious student hesitated no longer.

Less than a year ago Gruenhagen came to Chicago from Oshkosh, Wis., where he worked on his father's farm. Obtaining a position in Chicago he spent all his spare moments at the art studio. That his experience has been limited makes his work all the more marvelous to those who have seen it.

The fortunate young artist will go to Paris within a few weeks to realize the hopes of his early ambitions and struggles.

REPORT OF LAND RUSH DISCREDITED BY OFFICIALS

The authorities in the General Land Office said this morning that the report from Los Angeles, Cal., to the effect that one of the greatest land rushes in the West will occur in June, when the million acres of land reaching from Mojave to the Colorado River are thrown open to entry, is much exaggerated.

This land, which was recently restored to public domain by a decision of the United States Supreme Court, lies within the overlapping limits of grants made to the Atlantic and Pacific and Southern Railroad companies.

Since the notice of the restoration of these lands was sent out by the Land Office hundreds of letters asking for information have been received. Practically all of the land to be opened to settlement is a desert and of no value whatever until irrigation is established.

Risked Life on Operating Table

Then Rescued by WINE OF CARDUI.

MISS CAROLINE TAYLOR, 5649 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

I suffered with ovarian troubles for nearly five years before I really knew what troubled me. By that time I was so ill and weak that I never expected to recover. I underwent a painful and very expensive operation, spending nine months at the hospital, but making up my mind I would suffer any pain to get back my health. When I was finally brought home I still felt weak, but the doctor said I would have my usual strength in a couple of weeks. At the end of one month I found that I was no better and then decided that I had enough of the doctors and would try something else. As several of my friends had used Wine of Cardui and had spoken very highly of it I decided to try it. At first I felt no change and began to get discouraged, but after using three bottles I felt somewhat better and so kept on. In two months I was much stronger and in a short time I was restored to my usual health and strength.

I have since recommended Wine of Cardui to dozens of women who were in need of medicine and all are enthusiastic in its praise. You have my best wishes and hearty thanks for what you have done for me.

Wine of Cardui has saved thousands of women from the dangers of the operating table. And it would have saved Miss Taylor all her money and suffering had she gone to Wine of Cardui for relief before she had her unhappy experience with the doctor. To "have an operation" has become a common expression today. But a woman wants health, badly when she submits to an operation and it is sad indeed to see how many are disappointed after going through the pain and danger. You need not submit to bearing down and ovarian pains nor suffer the weakening drains of female troubles when such a remedy as Wine of Cardui is offered you. The most successfully conducted operation seldom brings permanent cure while Wine of Cardui cures nineteen out of every twenty cases. Be guided by Miss Taylor's experience. She shows you that for every suffering woman there is a cure can be taken in the privacy of home for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains, nervousness, ovarian pains and all the troubles that attack women from youth to old age. This great remedy can be secured from any druggist at $1.00 a bottle and taken in your home. Secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui today.
